The limelight of the smartphone market in India is stolen by the Chinese and Korean based smartphones but in recent times we have seen many Indian smartphones rising and delivering according to the needs of Indian population. The smartphones like Centric are new entrants in smartphone market and they are aimed at reaching those sections of society which constitute the majority population of India. Centric is manufacturing budget smartphones which are easily affordable by middle class families having all the desirable traits which a smartphone should possess. In our last review of Centric smartphones we shaded light on Centric A1 which was quite an interesting smartphone and prior to Centric A1 there were other previous launches from the company like Centric L1, P1, P1 Plus, and G1. This review of ours is about the latest entrant in the Indian smartphone which is Centric L3.
